A Short Guide to Your Map to Freedom

my map to freedom

The Problem:

Whilst we humans are remarkable creatures we have some basic limitations and the most prevalent is our need to create ways of acting, or behaving, that enable us to cope with the challenges of daily life. You might think I am talking about taking a glass of wine in the evening, or distracting yourself with some mindless TV and whilst these things are certainly coping mechanisms the less obvious coping mechanism are the habitual patterns of our personality. Your personality is in fact a well conditioned set of strategies that have helped you cope with life, in fact if you had not developed these strategies you may not have survived. But whilst these coping strategies are useful for keeping you comfortable, they become habits of closure and defensiveness that rob you of living a life of authenticity and presence.

However the challenge of observing these traits in action is very real. In a world where we are perpetually in motion it is difficult to find the space to see what is right in front of us. (Or what is right inside us). We find ourselves overwhelmed and overworked, and tired and stressed people do not have the time, space or motivation to observe themselves.

The Solution:

It was out of this modern day and largely western problem that the need for a device that could help us observe our thoughts and behaviours in action emerged. Your map is the answer.

Your map allows you to recognise these habitual patterns of the personality is key to living your life authentically, fully present and in the now. It involves making ongoing conscious efforts to observe yourself and your patterns of closure. The aim of your map is to bring awareness to the day-to-day dealings of your personality and show you the way back to your true self, authentic self, your coaching presence, and to the present moment. As you work with your map you will come to see the the walls you have built for self preservation and self protection that are now robbing you of the freedom to feel alive.

Your map is a visual tool that does two things:

- Firstly it shows you the specific ways you stop yourself from being who you are.
- Secondly it enables you to connect to your true self.

The Layers of the Map

The diagrammatic version of your map shown on the next page points to a tantalising truth... namely that you are so much more than you think you are.

Most of us think of our personality as the full extent of who we are, but the diagram on the next page points to the possibility that your personality is only one part of a much wider range of potential that exists in us all.

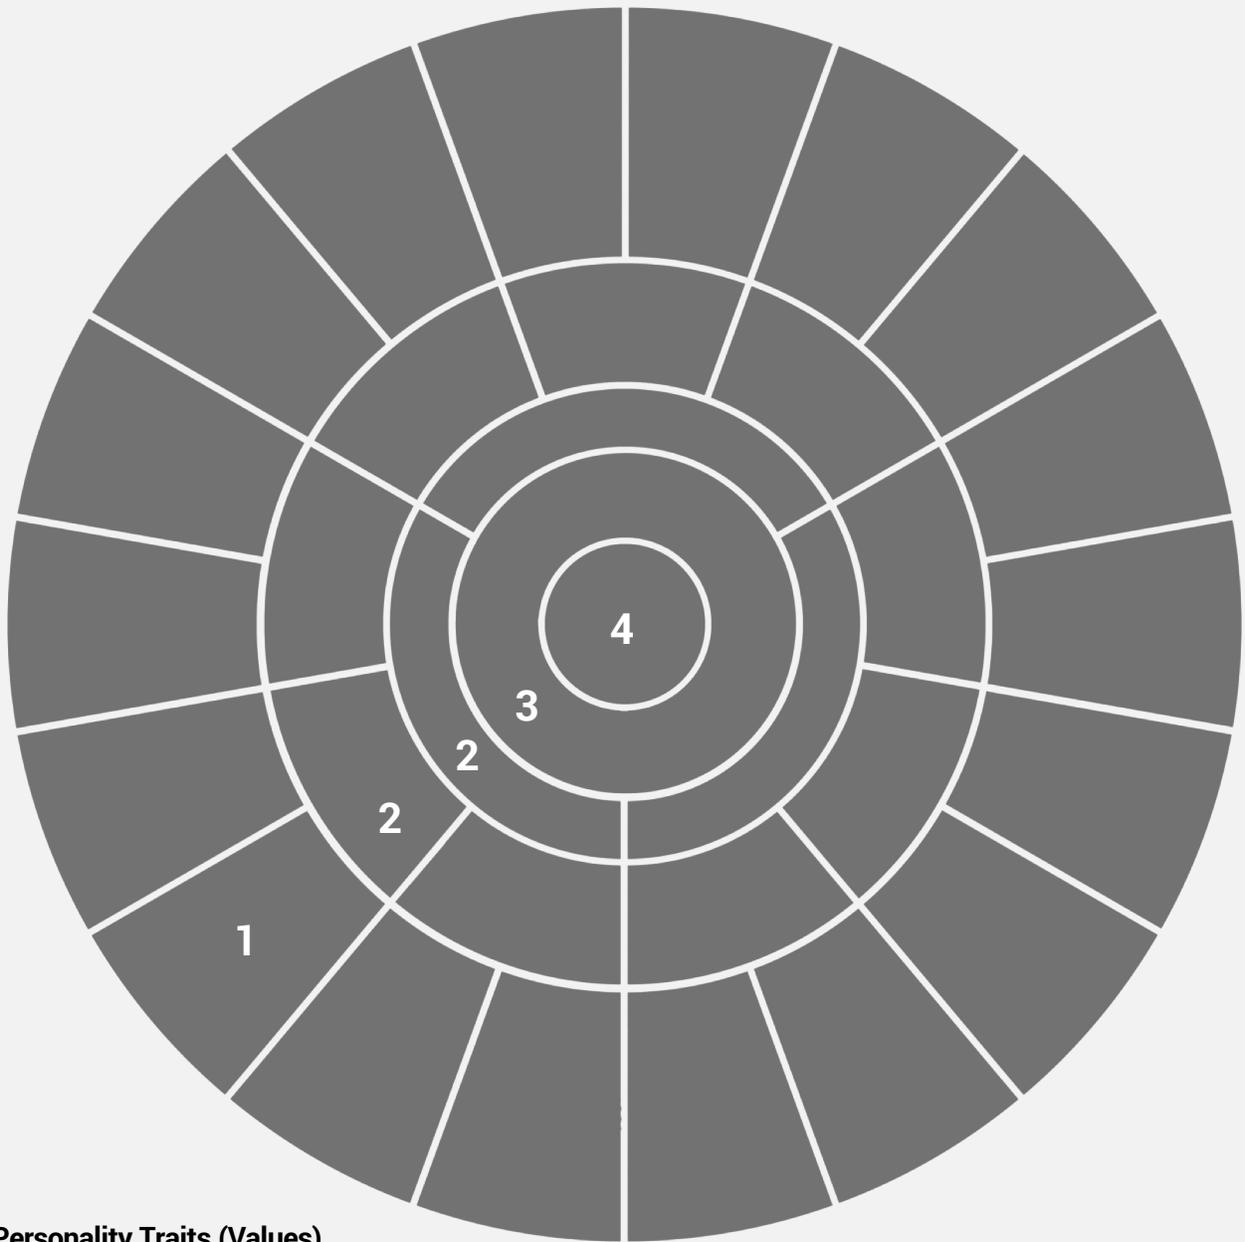

The Layers Of The Map

- The Outer Layer - Details your personality traits.
- The ways you act and behave in the world and the ways people know you as you.
- The Second Layer - Details your thoughts.
- The ways you think about yourself and the ways you act in the world.
- The Third Layer - Details your needs, emotions and fears.
- The Centre Space – Details your true self/real self/authentic self/soul signature

The centre space is the part of you that is the vast, largely unrecognised quality of being that has been encased in layers of protection and for the most part forgotten, it is this aspect of who you are that you have sensed is missing. This core part of your being has been named many things. Your true self, your authentic self, your essential self, your unconditioned self, your soul, the names are many but they all describe the same thing. The real you.

Most of us have had glimpses of our true self, for example, in times of exquisite peace or happiness, but they have been fewer than we would like because our awareness is so dominated by the day-to-day dealings of our personality.

There is much learn about the layers of the map but this brief introduction will get you started. So with that firmly in mind, read the full description of the outer layer of the Orange Helper and notice what seems familiar and what does not.

The Outer Layer:

Your Personality & Desire for Love

As an Orange Helper, your central towards value is love. You believe that if you are helpful you will be happy. The ways that you ensure that people will love you is by being seen as appealing, giving, caring and heartfelt and it is important to you that you are needed. The drive to win others' affections by being considered important and appreciated for your efforts is a way of obtaining support without having to ask for it. You want to be liked and are always ready with an easy smile, helpful advice, or a friendly compliment.

Relationship orientated, you reach out to others and are often the first one to lend a hand. You see yourself as approachable, nurturing and thoughtful. You would like others to see you as empathetic, supportive and altruistic. Your idealised image is that you are a loving and helpful person.

You have a warm, sociable and enthusiastic personality and you are naturally practiced in the art of using positive communication to create rapport. Your natural strength is your genuine ability to listen to others, empathise with their feelings and meet their needs. A good listener, you focus on the needs and concerns of others. You usually know what people need and feel, and enjoy taking on the kind of role where you can show your giving and generous nature.

You have developed the gift of flattery to the level of an art form because you see how this skill can be a currency for creating intimate rapport. Secretly, you can feel needy and vulnerable, feeling that you must earn the right to be loved. Avoiding a deep sense of loneliness, you find ways to connect to and be of service to others. You have an innate sense of what to say or do to make people feel seen and admired, and can be very diplomatic and skilled when it comes to delivering messages in ways that people can hear.

Like a fairy godmother or godfather, you like to do special things for people and surprise them with unexpected gifts. You take note of others' desires and try to fulfil them.

You take pride in your ability to comfort and support others. Your superpower though, is that you can be an excellent friend and will often go to great lengths to take care of and support those you love.

Always ready to be helpful, others often depend on you. You have innate people skills and value interpersonal relationships above all else. Your extraordinary insight about what people need, and your ability to create mutual trust and affinity, are rare gifts. You love to be instrumental in helping others achieve their full potential.

The Outer Layer:

Your Personality & Avoidance of Being Unloveable

As an Orange Helper, your central away from value is being unloved. You believe that if you are not loved you will be unhappy. Because of this your weaknesses and negative tendencies are related to the ways you ensure you always remain liked. Because of your unconscious fear of being unloved, you will often believe that you are the only one who sees and can give people what they need. This aspect of your personality leads to self-inflation, a form of pride. Though you might not realise it this pride masks the fact that you may give to people with strings attached. When you offer unsolicited advice or give compulsively, others may perceive you as bossy, overly demonstrative or manipulative.

In an effort to have your needs met, you may promise more than you can deliver or deliver more than you promise. Unconsciously, you may feel needy and want to be taken care of by others and can become emotional, sullen or overly dramatic, suffering from psychosomatic illnesses.

Whilst you are friendly, upbeat and want to be considered a 'special' friend you can get in your own way by over doing your focus on shape shifting to please others.

Skilled at going out of your way to notice what is needed you feel motivated when others acknowledge your efforts and express their appreciation.

However, you can be so focused on others that you don't pay attention to your own unmet needs and feelings. You avoid appearing needy or useless and feel that to have your needs met by others, you must meet their needs first. Because you can't help imagining that people are as sensitive to criticism as you are you may sugar-coat or shade the truth out of fear of hurting someone.

At other times your cheeriness can feel false as it functions as an overcompensation to mask sadness, resentment or disappointment. Secretly, you fear being ignored and don't want to feel left out, or be seen as inconsequential. To be liked, you avoid saying or doing anything that is off-putting or unflattering. You feel much more comfortable giving than receiving. To let yourself receive, you would have to express your own desires, which makes you feel vulnerable. Focused on the needs of others, you may repress your own needs and feel taken for granted.

Because you consider yourself to be indispensable, your vice is arrogance. Whilst you may believe that your giving nature is unconditional, if you dig deep enough you will discover that you have a habit of strategic giving. Giving to make people feel indebted to you.
